

Yellow ware pottery sites that have been excavated

Notes by George L. Miller

December 24, 2011

Fryman, Robert Joseph

1983 The Excavation of the Sprucevale Pottery: A Study in Nineteenth Industrial Archaeology. Ph.D. dissertation, University of Pittsburgh. University Microfilms International, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

1985 Pottery for the Common Man: The Sprucevale Pottery and the Early East Liverpool Ceramic Industry. Proceedings of the Symposium on Ohio Valley Urban and Historical Archaeology. Vol. 3:72-82.

Gaumond, Michel

1972 La Poterie De Cap-Rouge. Ministere Des Affaires Culturelles, Quebec. Established in 1880, manufactured Rockingham and yellow ware.

Genheimer, Robert A.

1987 Archaeological Testing, Evaluation, and Final Mitigation Excavations at Covington's Riverfront Redevelopment Phase 2 Site, Kenton County, Kentucky. Prepared by R. G. Archaeological Services. Covington, Kentucky. Vol. 1:54-59, Vol. 2: 347-352, a feature with waster sherds from the Covington Pottery operated by Bromley from 1859-1864 or 1865. The pottery made Rockingham and yellow ware.

Gums, Bonnie L.

1995 Yellow Ware in Illinois: The Wilhems' Pottery. Paper presented at the 1995 SHA Conference, Washington, D.C. In production from 1868 to 1887.

Liebeknecht, William B. and Rebecca White

2002 Rebekah at the Marriott: Marriott Site Yellow Ware Waster Dump, Circa 1863-1868, Trenton, New Jersey." Trenton Potteries, Newsletter of the Potteries of Trenton Society, March 2002: 3:1.

Webster, Donald B.

1968 The Brantford Potter 1849-1907. Royal Ontario Museum Art and Archaeology Occasional Papers 13. University of Toronto Press. The pottery produced stoneware, Rockingham and yellow ware. Nice illustrations of yellow ware bowls.